

St Jude's, Brighton (SA)

St Jude's Parish seeks a full-time priest, following the consecration of the previous incumbent as a bishop in the Anglican Diocese of Adelaide.

St Jude's is a flourishing church, with stable congregations, a powerful sense of belonging, and a strong commitment to welcoming new members.

We seek a person, called by God, and committed to inclusive, pastoral leadership of our church. Our parish welcomes and celebrates the variations and fluctuations in our Anglican faith in a positive spirit of 'unity in diversity'.

We are an optimistic church, open to innovative ministries; with a tradition of blending live and choral music into our worship.

We have a confident belief in our temporal mission and our capacity to serve and build relationships with the communities around us.

We offer care and support to young and old, both in our congregations and in diverse forms of practical outreach to many vulnerable people.

We are praying for a priest with qualities and values that resonate with these characteristics of our parish. By loving and encouraging us, we look forward to our priest enlivening our mission with his or her own style and personality.

Brighton is a delightful and demographically diverse seaside suburb in the south-western region of Adelaide. We are close to a broad range of public and private schools, including an early learning and primary Anglican school. Flinders University is a short drive or bus ride away. The St Jude's rectory is a comfortable two-storey building on a sizeable block, within easy reach of the church – and the beach!

We look forward to hearing from those whom the Spirit stirs.

For a Parish Profile and further information about this vacancy, please direct enquiries to Archbishop Geoffrey Smith at archbishop@adelaideanglicans.com.